When write() is called on a File Object, the inherited write method of SageFile is called, which calls the write() from the base fileclass, then calls sync() if necessary.